

FACT SHEET #9

Cattle Yards

Cattle yards are essential for all farmers working with cattle. The yards can be used to house cattle; to separate different groups of cattle within the herd; and to draft the animals for transportation to and from the farm.

Beef cattle need to be restrained safely for veterinary procedures, identification checks, pregnancy tests and insemination, as well as general health and maintenance procedures.

Cattle yards are usually made of steel for durability and are comprised of a number of different components. These components include walkways, sliding gates, trap gates, runways, and races.

Expo-Trade can supply a wide variety of cattle yards. You can choose from permanent and portable yards. We have many standard yard designs available or you can have a yard system designed and manufactured specifically for your property.

Australian designed and manufactured cattle yards have been developed from many years of experience, intensive government funded research, and utilizing modern technology and structural materials.

All the designs offered by Expo-Trade incorporate the best techniques in animal behaviour management for ease of use and maximum efficiency enabling you to manage the flow of animals with the least amount of effort.
